As a daughter, and being very close to my mother, I knew that I needed professional guidance as to what was truly the best and safest option for her. I was struggling with whether it was in her best interest to remain at home or consider the possibility of moving into assisted living. I wanted to make the best decision, but as my mother struggled with not wanting to sell the family home of 60 years, it was difficult not to have my own vision clouded by emotions, and I was effectively unable to discern what was in my mother's best interest.

L---- visited with my mother over a few months and assessed that we should consider looking at an assisted living residence. Both my mother and I were quite resistant initially until L---- said, "Why don't you look at it and see what it is that you are saying 'no' to?" On the day of the scheduled visit, I came close to cancelling the appointment because my mother kept insisting that she did not want to leave her home.

We met L---- at the residence and quickly I felt that my mother would be safe, for the first time in years. L----'s guidance was the perfect degree of encouraging us to explore all the options. She investigated and presented the options available to us, assuring us that change is always difficult, but it sometimes is the wisest choice. Her help was invaluable. My mother has very successfully moved into the beautiful assisted living residence that L---- had found for us. We are profoundly and deeply grateful to L---- for her support, encouragement and guidance.
